

BLOCK OF GRANITE IN FRONT OF THE FOE, DECLARES TARDIEU

BEAUN, France, Thursday, May 29.—Captain Andre Tardieu, member of the French peace delegation and former head of the general commission for Franco-American war matters, defended the treaty of peace in an address delivered to-day at the closing exercises of Bozon university, where 10,000 American student soldiers have been studying since the armistice put an end to actual hostilities. He said, in discussing the treaty:

"First, it is honest. It agrees with our program of war, without public engagements and with our conception of internal life. To find matters for reproach in this character is to misunderstand, altogether, what ideals have contributed to our victory and to strip up in peace the one of our greatest forces in the war."

"Besides, it is common to us both and vouches for in every one of its articles by the wholehearted adhesion of you, and of the allied governments. While he is studying and discussing this same treaty, the enemy well knows that he has a block of granite in front of him. If anyone tries to belittle this solidarity he thereby confesses that he has learned nothing from the lessons of the war or from the creative greatness of our union."

"Finally it is efficient for in that world which it invites to peace it makes Germany truly harmless. It forces her to repair everything which she should and can repair, everything which we condemned her to repair on the 11th of November last, and everything which the universal conscience of the world demands that she should repair."

"To challenge the need of such a guarantee is to confess to having lived for five years outside of humanity and to ignoring the martyrdom which such aggression has inflicted on it."

Capt. Tardieu warned the Americans against intrigues at home and abroad, which, he said, tended to break down the friendship between America and France and might "befog the conscience of the people." He told of some stories put into circulation by the Germans, saying he mentioned them "merely to draw their venom," and gave warning against expressions which "might be harmless if uttered in a New York club, but which are dangerous and blame-worthy if voiced in Paris."

Concerning Bolshevism, Captain Tardieu said:

"There are those who, misled by the confines of Bolshevism strive to seize and exploit that power of human progress, which has come across the seas your nation repudiates as energetically as we do; and who, by this attempt over-excite yet more the reactionary parties whose quarrels would make your country step into broils which do no concern her any more than your interior differences are matters for us Frenchmen to meddle in."

In appealing for mutual understanding between America and France, Captain Tardieu asked that the American soldiers tell the people of the true conditions in France.

"You will tell of France just as you have seen her," he said. "You have seen her fighting in the front lines, you have seen her at work behind the lines. Tell them also, for it is true, that at the peace table she has always been true to her principles and has remained the slave of her word."

"We at this end will tell how two years ago you had nothing of the many things which go to make modern war, and how sixteen months later you were two million strong in our land. We will also say that during the labors of the conference our just claim found no more far-sighted advocate than President Woodrow Wilson. You will say that you were quite aware of all intrigues on foot intended to darken the purity of our mutual friendship. We will say that we see clearly the game of those for whom the loosening of our common bonds is but an instrument of reactions or one of revolution."

"In that way the Franco-American friendship, offering of Washington and Lafayette, still mutilated and warmed up by the common effort in this war of

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

An eminent European financier whose family for many generations has been a power in international banking affairs, once said that it required a good deal of boldness and a great deal of caution to make a fortune, and that when you got it it required ten times greater wit to keep it.

There is a distinct difference between the power of making money and the power of saving money. Making money is largely a knack—a special gift. Financiers, like poets, are born, not made. But thrift is just as essential to the money maker as it is to the money saver.

No matter how shrewd a man may be or how keenly developed his instincts for acquiring wealth, he will never be successful unless an element of thrift is woven into all his activities. The so-called plunger—the meteoric financier—may, at times, seem able to defy prudent practices and the principles of thrift. However, such success is seldom permanent. Wealth gained by a sort of legend rather than through the working out of sound business practices nearly always proves transitory.

The majority of men who have built up great fortunes, though they have,

In many instances, risen rapidly owe their success primarily to thrift. It was this that gave them the start they needed, and it was the development of this characteristic that imparted the combination of courageous aggressiveness and cautious judgment without which there can be no substantial success in money matters.

Sheer lack of thrift has caused more financial failures than anything else. How many men there are to-day who might have become wealthy had they only known how to save money! During the course of their careers they have earned large sums, but these have slipped from their fingers from day to day. They had the natural gift of making money, but they lacked the quality of permanent success—which is thrift.

Although the ability to make money is, to a considerable extent, a matter of natural aptitude, the still more important accomplishment of thrift can be acquired by anyone. There is no excuse for not saving money.

Thriftlessness is an indication of weakness. It is indecision of character.

Thrift requires steadfastness, and the marshalling of the last ounce of moral strength that we possess. But it does not require any special genius or brilliant gift of mind.

It is within the power of every man and woman to thrive through the cultivation of prudent habits. Practices of thrift do not bring a guarantee of great wealth. But they are an absolute assurance of modest success and a never failing protection against complete failure and poverty.

ESCAPE & SENSATION

BERLIN, Thursday, May 29.—A sensation has been caused by a statement published by the Independent newspaper Freiheit that Lieutenant Vogel, who was convicted of the murder of Rosa Luxemburg, the radical Socialist leader, and who recently mysteriously escaped from prison, had been released under a false order and was now at the German legation in Holland awaiting the next steamer to Argentina. The statement charged that he had reached the legation with a pass from the war ministry.

Ohio County Boy Is Honored For "Bawling Out" By Cronkhite

CAMP STUART, Va., May 30.—Lawrence Fitzpatrick, No. 1 on the Ohio County Draft Board's list and the first man designated by his "pals" for a distinguished service cross, made of leather, Fitz not only holds the record of having been the first to go from Ohio county, but he was the first and only Ohio county boy to be officially "bawled out" by Major General Adelbert Cronkhite, division commander.

Fitz admits that the calling the general gave him was an official one, beyond all doubt.

"It was the duty of some non-com to call me," said Fitzpatrick, "but their eyes must have been bad the day I was wearing a red sweater, or they couldn't tell khaki from red, and the general could. He rode up and the calling he gave me was all one-sided. All I got a chance to say was 'Yes, sir.' Then I came the red sweater."

June 5 Fitzpatrick will have 21 months' service in.

LEMLEY, LATEST PITCHING FIND AT WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY

Lemley has pitched five contests for the Mountaineers this year. His first win was from "Scissors" McElvaine's Charleston club. Then he lost to Colgate 1-0 in a hard fought contest. Then he beat Cornell 4-2, and finally he shut out Ohio Wesleyan, 6-0. Lemley has allowed but eight runs in the five contests, and only 25 hits in the 16 innings he has worked. Today he is to pitch the initial game of the W. and J. series on the university field, and though the game is important he is relied upon to turn in a winner. The Mountaineers are fortunate in pitchers of late. Just as "Lefty" Baughen was finishing June, and Lattemer appeared on the scene, and have done four years of fine service. Lemley appeared when June had just finished, and this year finishes Lattemer. Lemley is a freshman from Morgantown.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 30.—Ray O. BODY OF A WOMAN CAUGHT ON TROT LINE AT YORKVILLE

A fisherman in blocking his trot line in the Ohio river near Yorkville last evening was amazed and not a little horrified to find the body of a woman, the clothes of which had caught on one of the hooks.

The body was pulled ashore and the corner notified. All efforts to learn whether or not the body had been identified proved fruitless.

FOUR FORMER WINNERS WILL COMPETE FOR FIRST HONORS IN BIG INDIANAPOLIS RACE

A long standing argument as to the supremacy of four former winners of championship events on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will be decided during the Indianapolis 500-mile Liberty Sweepstakes race, May 31st, when Jules Goux, Rene Thomas, Ralph De Palma and Dario Resta join battle in that event.

Goux was the first European ever to win an Indianapolis classic, romping home in handy fashion at the wheel of a Peugeot in 1913. Next year he was not so fortunate, being bested by Rene Thomas, another Frenchman, with a Delage.

In 1915, the world war kept the Europeans too busily engrossed to participate in the Hoosier contest, with the exception of Dario Resta, with whom Ralph De Palma fought the greatest speed duel in racing history, winning out only after the most sensational driving, the decision in the balance scale last lap.

The year following Resta's triumph, however, running from the field and holding the distance. This was the year Resta won the A. A. A. championship, and cleaned up over $45,000 in prizes.

Which one of the "quartet" demonstrate himself to be the man in this year's five hundred encounter? Here is a question the wisecracks are puzzling over, one guess as good as another, this writing it looks like a neck race from the starting line to the finish line.
